LETTERS

Some sad news at the end of this lettercolumn, but in the meantime, let's get to your comments.

Dear Folks,

Why do the Flintstones and the Jetsons always wear the same clothes? I mean the same colors, styles, and everything?

Michelle Fields
Duluth, Minn.

Hey, you find what you like and you stick with it. In the Flintstones' time their choice was probably limited, and in the Jetsons' time maybe everyone had their own distinctive look. Less confusing that way.

Dear Flintstones,

Is Dino a baby dinosaur?

Jeannie Zeeb
Shadow Hills, Calif.

Let's just say Dino isn't fully grown yet.

Dear JETSONS,

I really like the JETSONS half of your FLINTSTONES/JETSONS magazine. I am a science-fiction fan and started watching "Jetsons" on TV when I was a kid. I like to think of them as part of the reason why I like sf so much. Kind of like the way so many people in advertising attribute their careers to Darrin Stephens from "Bewitched." (The first Darrin, of course.) Yeah, all the stuff is kooky, but there's such imagination. The Jetsons always pointed out the importance in science fiction of not having the story revolve around the gadgets, but around the premise. I think that was one of the main points the great Isaac Asimov always tried to make about his craft. That it's not a futuristic setting with people in it, but people in a futuristic setting. And I've grown up loving George, Jane, Judy, Elroy, and yes, Astro. Although they always seemed to play second fiddle to the Flintstones, the Jetsons were more an ultramodern future-age family. Whereas Fred and the gang had their roots in the classic "Honeymooners," I saw the Jetsons source somewhere in the sitcoms of the '60s with maybe a touch of "Father Knows Best" (or in George's case, Father didn't).

All of this comes down to me thanking you for your efforts at bringing the Jetsons in comic form to a new generation (I read them to my son). Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,

Don Beaugeraud
Iowa City, Iowa

Thanks for your letter, Don. We think the Flintstones and the Jetsons are same sides of the same coin. Both are middle-income families struggling to get along. They're the common man. If you're a science-fiction fan, how about this for a possibility: that the Jetsons and Flintstones are not necessarily of our Earth but from other parallel Earths somewhere out in space? OK, maybe not. Maybe they're just cartoons.

ANNOUNCEMENT: Good news and bad news.

The bad news is: it is our gloomy task to announce that this is the last issue of FLINTSTONES/JETSONS. We had a good time working on the book and reading your letters. We hope we made you smile. You can still watch "The Flintstones and The Jetsons" on the Cartoon Network (check your local listings).

We thank all of the creative artists, writers, inkers, letterers, and colorists who worked on the book and made it a funny read and a joy to work on. Thanks especially to Bronwyn Taggart for getting it all started.

The good news is that there will be some new books inspired by the programs on the Cartoon Network.

We're going to start DEXTER'S LABORATORY as a monthly comic! Everyone will be there: Dexter, DeeDee, Mom, Dad, Mandark, and you!

Plus, there's going to be an ALL NEW CARTOON NETWORK magazine that will feature four of your favorite shows: the new hit sensation THE POWER PUFF GIRLS, the high-hair hijinks of JOHNNY BRAVO, the strangest brother and sister COW AND CHICKEN, and SPAAACE GHOOOST! You'll be able to pick them up soon, so watch for them. Be sure to write us with your comments and be sure to watch the Cartoon Network. See you in the cartoons!

Take care.
